Chapter 113: The Creation of the Fifth Clones – Guardians of the Divine Legacy

As the multiverse continued to expand under the governance of the Divine Triad, Sung Jin-Woo and Sung Su-Ho recognized the need for eternal guardians to oversee the legacy of their dynasty. To fulfill this purpose, they each created their fifth clones, who would reside in the Palace of the Divine Legacy, also known as the Sung Dynasty Palace.

The Sung Dynasty Palace

The Palace of the Divine Legacy is an enormous, celestial structure located in the Absolute Realm Universe. Its grandeur reflects the power and history of the Divine Triad. The palace serves as a sacred repository of knowledge, history, and divine artifacts, ensuring that the legacy of the Triad endures for eternity.

Key Features:

1. The Celestial Halls: Endless chambers filled with records of the Divine Triad's achievements, written in languages comprehensible to all beings across the multiverse.

2. The Vault of Relics: A secure chamber containing divine artifacts, including fragments of the Absolute Crown and creations of the Divine Triad.

3. The Eternal Gardens: A serene space within the palace where celestial flora and fauna thrive, representing the harmony and balance achieved under the Triad's rule.

4. The Hall of Elders: The central chamber where the fifth clones reside, acting as the keepers and protectors of the palace.

The Fifth Clones

1. Sung Jin-Woo’s Fifth Clone

Title: Elder of Shadows

Role: Oversees the archives of shadow magic and the histories of the Shadow Lords. The Elder of Shadows ensures that the knowledge of the Shadow Abyss remains preserved and guides future generations in their understanding of shadow power.

2. Sung Su-Ho’s Fifth Clone

Title: Elder of Flames

Role: Custodian of the records and relics of the Fiery Dragon Lords. The Elder of Flames protects the secrets of dragonfire and ensures the teachings of the Draconis lineage endure for eternity.

Purpose of the Fifth Clones

The fifth clones were not created for combat but for wisdom and preservation. Their purpose is to act as mentors, historians, and keepers of divine knowledge. They also serve as spiritual guides for the Divine Triad's forces and emissaries, offering counsel and ensuring the multiverse remains aligned with the Triad's vision.

Their existence signifies the Divine Triad's commitment to preserving their legacy, ensuring that their influence remains eternal and unshaken throughout all realms.

With the creation of the fifth clones and the establishment of their roles within the Sung Dynasty Palace, the Divine Triad solidifies their dominion and their legacy as the ultimate rulers of existence.
